LEAVE PANAMA

The resignation of Mr. George A. Whitney, one of the oldest engineers in point of service now with the Panama Canal takes from the Isthmian the one man who has frequently been taken for Governor Goethals, the resemblance being very striking. Mr. Whitney has been in the service 11 years having arrived on the Isthmus in 1905. With his wife he has occupied the same quarters at Cristobal for 9 years, a record in the conditions of change that have been always a part of the Isthmian life. During that nine years no fewer than 13 different families have been in the same house.

Mr. Whitney is making arrangements to purchase a farm in Oregon where he will make his home with Mrs. Whitney and her mother. The best wishes of their many friends follow them into the new life—Panama Star and Herald.

LAMBERT'S NEW CORN WAGON

In the vernacular of the street there is "some class" to the new pop corn and lunch wagon operated by Frank Lambert on the corner of Brown and Davenport streets. It is the last word in the line of vending wagons and was purchased by Mr. Lambert direct from the factory at a price which would equal the cost of an ordinary house and lot. The outfit is elaborate to say the least and speaks well for Mr. Lambert's enterprise. Since the opening Friday Mr. Lambert has been doing a rushing business.

STATE HAS MANY TRAINED SOLDIERS

Wisconsin Would Mobilize 7000 Drilled Men In Case Of Emergency

Madison, April 21.—If an emergency occasioned the necessity for it, Wisconsin could mobilize 7,000 trained soldiers at Camp Douglas within twenty-four hours after the call was issued. This was the statement of Adjutant General Orlando Holway Friday.

"From the information that we have at hand, Wisconsin is the only state that has a detailed schedule worked out for the mobilization of its troops," said General Holway. "In just twenty-four hours the railroads, under our agreement with them, can furnish equipment and place same at the starting place of the trains. Every company of the Wisconsin National Guard has instructions as to the train it is to take, the time it leaves, and even the cars in which the individual soldiers are to sit."

While no action has been taken by the adjutant general, owing to the fact that no authority has been granted by the war department, it is estimated that in this same time, twenty-four hours, every company can be raised to war strength. The companies were recently enlarged from a complement of sixty-five men, peace strength, to eighty-seven men, and the captain of each company has been instructed to conduct tentative recruiting campaigns which to 150 men, or to full strength, would result in raising the strength. General Holway said that he was of the opinion that every company could be raised to war strength shortly after a call had been issued.

A new schedule, providing for the increase in the size of the Wisconsin National Guard, is being arranged by the adjutant general and the railroads. Last year eleven trains, including cars for the men, baggage cars, horse cars, and all necessary equipment, were necessary to transport the 3,200 troops that mobilized at Camp Douglas. The increasing of the strength of the companies to eighty-seven has necessitated the adding of five more trains to the schedule. In case of war department orders the guard increased to war strength, still another schedule will have to be provided.

SEVERAL DESIRE BARSTOW'S PLACE

Advancement Association Has Made No Decision On New Secretary

Since E. O. Barstow submitted his resignation as secretary of the Rhinelander Advancement association several candidates for the position have placed their applications with the board of directors. Tuesday night the board of directors met for the purpose of considering applications but came to no definite decision. Two of the outside men who have applied for the place were present at the meeting. Three or four local men are included among the applicants.

Mr. Barstow is desirous of beginning his new duties as secretary of the Manistique, Mich., commercial organization May 6th or 7th, and it is expected that a new secretary will be selected for this city before that time.

FLOODS CRIPPLE TRAIN SERVICE

Traffic on the Northwestern line was tied-up for many hours Monday owing to a bad washout near Mercer. The tracks were under four feet of water and about fifty feet of the main line was washed out. Heavy rains caused the Turtle river at Mercer to overflow, resulting in no little damage.

Monday afternoon's Northwestern passenger train due in Ashland at 5:55 p. m. did not arrive in that city until 2:15 Tuesday morning.

KILLS WOLF AND CUBS

Charles Johnson of the town of Woodboro collected the county bounty on the pelts of a female wolf and four cubs this week. The county paid him twenty-six dollars and he will collect a like amount from the state.

ONEIDA PUPILS HEALTHY AS THOSE OF OTHER COUNTIES

Mr. F. A. Lowell, Rhinelander, Wis. Dear Mr. Lowell:—

In reference to the articles published in the Milwaukee papers concerning the survey made in Oneida county schools, I would like to make the following statement, in view of the fact that some adverse criticism has been made of the articles.

In the first place, no reasonable person would criticize such a work if they thoroughly understood it. It is work done for their good and if advantage is taken of the information secured, they will be greatly benefited.

If a man calls attention to a small patch of some noxious weed on his neighbor's farm, of which he was not aware, so that he might root it out while it was still small, the man would be doing his neighbor a genuine service, for which the neighbor should be grateful.

If attention is called to some defect in the neighbor's child, which, if taken in the beginning, can be cured, but, which, if neglected, may grow worse or become incurable, an even greater service is done to the neighbor, and to the child a service may be rendered which will alter the child's whole life for the better.

It is no secret that town and city children have outdistanced their country cousins in the matter of health. Attention to sanitary and hygienic details have, in a quarter of a century, made the city child the superior of the country child, and this condition of affairs will continue unless the country dweller recognizes the truth, instead of trying to cover it up.

Nothing has been or ever will be gained by covering up these conditions. They must be discovered, just as the noxious weed was, and then vigorous measures must be taken to eradicate them or they will multiply beyond our control.

In the second place, the newspaper articles do not state, nor do any investigations tend to show that Oneida county is in any worse plight than other counties in the state or in the United States. In fact, the reports show that Oneida county stands about on a par with the other counties investigated. Indeed the school buildings in this county are superior to those in some parts of the state. But Oneida county and its residents should feel proud that they were pioneers in starting this work, which has every evidence of assuming nation-wide importance.

That the National Council of Education and the American Medical Association have cooperated to better the existing conditions is abundant evidence of the need of the investigation of the health conditions in rural communities and the Superintendent of Schools of Oneida county is entitled to the warmest praise and gratitude for his efforts in this direction. This is not a matter that affects a small portion of the state of Wisconsin only, but it will affect the whole United States and be the means of benefiting thousands and even millions of school children, and incidentally, let us hope that it will be the means of restoring to the country children their lost superiority over the city children.

Oneida county was not compared with other counties. The only two counties that were used in the above investigation were Oneida and Bayfield, and so no definite comparison was made with other counties in the same manner, and there was no pretense that Oneida county and Bayfield county were different from any other county. The Superintendents of these 2 counties should be greatly commended for their splendid service in this work.

Yours very truly,
W. C. BENNETT.

SOME GOOD SUGGESTIONS FOR "CLEAN-UP" WEEK

M. J. Cleary, state insurance commissioner and ex-officio state fire marshal, sends out the following spring "clean-up" bulletin from Madison:

Health, safety from fire and beauty of surroundings all demand, that at this time of the year the winter's accumulation of waste, rubbish, filth and dirt be cleaned up and removed from all premises.

Filth and dirt harbor the germs of disease and are breeding places for flies. Rubbish is ever ready to ignite from a match or cigar stub carelessly thrown away, and this often results in fires dangerous to life and the destruction of much property.

Nothing speaks so well for a city and its inhabitants as clean, well-kept homes, clean streets, alleys, yards and lots, fine lawns and gardens, and public and business buildings free from litter and rubbish, while the untidy homes, unclean streets, alleys, yards, gardens of weeds, ash and rubbish deposits, and useless old buildings give the whole town a dilapidated appearance and are a sad reflection on the dwellers therein.

Cleanliness is inexpensive and a little effort on the part of all will work wonders.

In past years mayors, members of fire departments, health officers, women's clubs and other civic improvement societies have rendered valuable service to their home towns during "clean-up-week" and we hope their efforts will be redoubled this year.

Let the mayor designate and proclaim a "clean-up-week", let firemen and health officers thoroughly inspect all premises, and let civic improvement bodies, through a designated committee, plan and carry out a clean-up campaign.

The attention of city and village officers is called to Chapter 163 Laws of 1915, which makes provision for the removal of ashes and rubbish at public or private expense as may be determined.

We especially appeal to the pride of each individual citizen, which should prompt him to clean up and remove all waste and rubbish from attics, cellars, closets, area ways, yards, and alleys.

Merchants often endanger valuable stocks of merchandise and buildings by permitting rubbish to accumulate in basements and back yards.

It is hoped that as a part of the Arbor Day Exercises, May 5th, every school building and all school grounds will be thoroughly cleaned up.

Not least of all we appeal to the good housekeepers of the state to aid in this campaign of cleanliness.

When "Clean-up Week" is gone let every day be a clean-up day.

It is easier to prevent disease than to cure it, and easier to prevent fires than to put them out, much cheaper in fact and much less dangerous.

OFFICERS ARREST SUSPECT IN ELCHO POSTOFFICE CASE

In the arrest of Jack Bernard, the United States postal authorities believe that they have in custody one of the yeggmen, who robbed the postoffice in Elcho two weeks ago.

Bernard was arrested Monday afternoon in a camp operated by the Langlade Lbr. company near Bass Lake. He was traced there by Sheriff Thomas Ford of Langlade county and Postoffice Inspector John A. Nyle of Wausau. When apprehended Bernard denied all knowledge of the Elcho robbery and stoutly maintained his innocence.

The prisoner was brought before H. L. Reeves, United States court commissioner, in this city Wednesday for hearing, but as the crime with which he is charged was not committed in this district he will be taken before the United States court commissioner at Milwaukee.

The robbers who blew the Elcho postoffice safe secured $122 in cash and left unmolested stamps and valuable papers.

SHOULD FILE ALL CITY ORDINANCES

Officials Would Know When Ordinances So Amended or Repealed

Last Monday evening, the Chief of Police ordered the saloons closed at 11:30 p. m. in accordance with the terms of the ordinance passed in 1908. On Tuesday, it was found that the ordinance of 1908 had been amended in 1911 whereby the closing hour for saloons was fixed at midnight. The present condition of the records in the City Clerk's office makes it a matter of great difficulty to determine whether an ordinance in force in 1908 has since been amended or repealed.

The State Law provides that the City Clerk shall keep a book in which he shall enter after its passage every ordinance adopted by the council. Another section of the statutes provides that when ordinances shall have been published, the printer publishing the same shall file with the City Clerk his proof of publication and the bill for such publication shall not be audited until such proof is so filed.

A great many ordinances were passed by the council during the years 1903 to 1915, but practically all of these ordinances are now entered in the ordinance book and no proof of their publication has ever been requested. A person desiring to learn whether a certain ordinance was passed during the years 1903 to 1915 is now obliged to dig his way through all the records of the council proceedings, which is some job.

The work on entering these ordinances in the ordinance book does not properly devolve upon any present city official. It is a matter of utmost importance, however, to every citizen, that the ordinances be placed in a book so that they can be conveniently found.

BASE BALL TEAM FOR RHINELANDER

The Fans Are Promised Some Classy Exhibitions Here This Summer

Base ball fans here will rejoice at the announcement that Rhinelander is not to be without the great national pastime the coming season. Al. Jameson, who managed last year's team, is in charge of the organization work and will soon have his line-up completed. The team will comprise about the same membership as that of 1915 and it will be remembered that this was an exceptionally strong nine. Mr. Jameson has already arranged the season's schedule of games.

In order to buy needed supplies for the team Mr. Jameson has hit upon the scheme of selling season tickets and hopes to dispose of one hundred of these tickets before the initial game.

In conversation with a New North reporter he said: "Rhinelander fans may expect to see some high class base ball exhibitions here this summer. I will use nearly the same line-up as I had last season, as they were a number one team both on the offensive and defensive. My object in selling season tickets is to purchase uniforms and other supplies which are badly needed and also to stimulate interest among the business men. I feel as though we can sell tickets where we could not get donations, and make it more pleasant for all concerned. I hope you will boost us all you can through the New North."

BROWN ADDRESSES MACCABEES HERE

John W. Brown, state commander of the K. O. T. M. lodge, addressed the members of the local tent at a special meeting Tuesday night. He spoke on the order and its growth.

At the present time the Great Tent of the K. O. T. M. has a membership of 350,000. The reserve fund is $12,000,000 and still growing. The grand review in San Francisco last fall was one of the largest fraternal turn-outs ever seen in the west.

Recently some important changes were made in the laws of the order, one in particular being the old age benefit which now costs only members one dollar.

The Rhinelander tent has 75 members, many of whom are scattered throughout the county.

"LAND CLEARING LIMITED" COMING

Will Give Demonstration in Three Lakes and Woodruff, This County

Lively interest is being taken in the stump pulling contests which are to be held at 16 points along the route of the "Land Clearing Limited" on its tour in May and June of 12 counties in upper Wisconsin.

By means of this series of exhibitions and demonstrations the settlers in each of these communities will be given the opportunity to compare different types of machines, which are being manufactured for stump pulling and clearing land.

The use of simple home made hand stumping machines will be shown as well as the horse and gasoline power rigs. Dynamite and hand power pullers will also be used.

Two or three days' time will be spent at each stop enroute. Land for demonstration purposes, as near the tracks as possible, will be secured in advance by county agricultural representatives and other local agents. The clearing will be made under actual working conditions, all stumps and other hindrances to the plow being taken as they come.

In case of unfavorable weather the meetings will be held in the town halls or other places, where illustrated talks will be given and models exhibited.

The route of the train announced this week, is as follows: Mountain, Oneida county; Deerbrook and Elcho, Langlade county; Crandon, Forest county; Three Lakes, Oneida county; Eagle River, Woodruff, Vilas county; Bayfield, Bayfield county; Phillips and Madison, Sawyer county; Bennett, Douglas county; Spooner, Washburn county; Barab, Barron county; Cornell, Chippewa county; and Hannibal, Taylor county.

The enterprise will be cooperative in nature, representatives of the College of Agriculture working in conjunction with the railroads and companies engaged in the manufacture of stump pulling and piling machinery and explosives. The train will be operated over the lines of the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, & Omaha Railroads.

MYRL SWAILS DIES, ILL OVER YEAR

Liddle Myrl Swail, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Swails of Rose Hill, died at an early hour this morning at the family home.

Myrl's illness dates back from February 1915, when she suffered an attack of LaGrippe which later developed into tuberculosis. She was obliged to abandon her studies in high school here at that time. Everything that medical skill and loving hands could accomplish was done for her but to no avail. The ravages of the disease could not be checked and within the last few months she failed rapidly. All through her long illness she was a patient sufferer and faced the inevitable with remarkable fortitude.

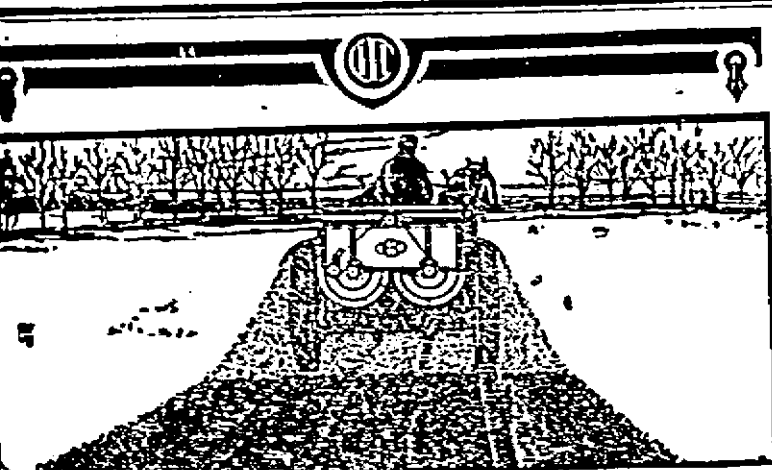

Myrl was born in Spirit Lake, Iowa, April 11, 1899 and at the time of her death was 17 years and 16 days of age. She was an exceptionally bright girl and her cheery disposition endeared her to her loved ones and friends.

The funeral will be held from the residence in Roosevelt Saturday morning at ten o'clock. Rev. Grant V. Clark will officiate. Interment will be made in Forest Home cemetery here.

Beside her parents deceased survived by two sisters and four brothers, namely, Owen, Orville, Carrie, Warren, Glenn and Hazel. In their great affliction the family have the sincere sympathy of the community.

WOULD MAKE ALCOHOL

Congressman E. E. Browne of Waupaca is devoting much energy to an effort to have congress authorize the manufacture of alcohol at the government sawmill at Neopit, Shawano county. In address before the house, Browne pointed out that waste from that mill will produce about twenty gallons of nine percent alcohol for each ton of lumber. It is known as grain alcohol and it was pointed out that from the annual cut of 1,000,000 feet of lumber a year, development of the by-product would prove most profitable. Grain alcohol is being used to some extent now in place of gasoline, the greatest disadvantage being high cost due to limited production. It is said to have many advantages over gasoline, being easier to handle, free from carbon practically odorless during combustion.

Buy an Up-To-Date Low Corn King Spreader

PLEASE note that in the Low Corn King the box is narrow—only 45 inches in width. The Low Corn King can be driven into a modern barn and loaded directly from the stable. That saves work.

The spread is eight feet or wider. That shortens the unloading time. The manure is thrown well beyond the wheels. That enables the driver to match up the edges of his strips without driving on manure-covered ground. You know what a big advantage that is.

The manure gets two thorough beatings. It lands on the ground in a finely-pulverized condition. The soil immediately takes up the fertilizing properties. There is no loss or waste of valuable fertilizing material.

Buy an up-to-date, wide spreading Low Corn King spreader from the local dealer.

Smells Don't Cause Disease

Great confusion remains in the minds of even generally well educated and well informed people concerning what is important and what is unimportant in the causation and prevention of disease. It is difficult for most of us to get away from the superstitions which fill our youth and the teaching of mistaken beliefs which were held by most learned authorities of a few years back, but are now obsolete.

One of the most persistent illusions is that anything which has a disagreeable odor, especially when it is associated in one's mind with something which is held to be "dirty," constitutes a menace to health. Thus, in the minds of many people, the presence of a pig within the corporation limits is thought to be dangerous to the health of the neighborhood. In this connection I was amused by an instance which occurred in a western state in the discussion of a paper I read on public health administration. A very intelligent clergyman cited as evidence of a lax health administration in his town the fact that the health officer could not prosecute a citizen who kept pigs in his back yard. As a matter of fact the only pigs within limits that are really a menace to the public health are the bad ones which have not passed under the discerning eye of a federal meat inspector and are only partially cooked before eating.

Our fancies regarding drinking water, similarly, are quite likely to be faulty and dangerous. For instance, the old teaching that "running water purifies itself" is entirely untrue. Clear sparkling water may harbor more typhoid germs for example than the most murky water. Indeed, the typhoid germ is a very delicate and dainty creature and to thrive requires fairly clear water. It dies quite readily in the sludge of a septic tank. While water is purified as it bubbles over rocks by exposure to the greatest factor in its purification is time. Running water purifies itself if it runs long enough, because disease germs don't as a rule, survive long outside the body.

This fact leads the modern sanitarian to give his main attention to things which surround us, to people who harbor disease germs and discharge them where they may be readily taken up and added into a new victim whose physical condition is such as to give him the nutriment without which he cannot live. The highest saluted health officers of large cities advise this and deaths from germ diseases are declining because of new methods of discovering and destroying these armies of disease germs. To greatly increase our safety, public health officers and the public generally need to get the new conception of cleanliness—need to learn that many "dirty" things are clean and many "clean" things are dirty. Manure discharges are dangerous because of the likelihood of their containing the germs of human disease.

The Enemy of Progress
(A Talk With Young Men)

I'm not going to preach to you or at you—I'm not good enough to be a preacher; and I'm not going to attempt to teach you—I'm not smart enough to be a teacher. I'm just going to have a little friendly council with you—if you'll let me. And you will—won't you? Say! I was a boy once—no smarter, no better than you; and I made mistakes—and lots of them. And I got hurt; and I have scars on my soul today, too. And now I am past middle age—and going down on the shady side of the hill; and the shadows cast by the sunset of life fall across my pathway—and inspire in me sober thoughts.

Don't get impatient, now—wait just a moment. I know all about what it means to be full of red blood and animal spirits; I was a boy once, I tell you. Besides, I have a boy of my own today, just merging into young manhood—blood of my blood and bone of my bone; and he's dearer to me than life itself. He means to me just what you mean to your father. And your father and I are friends—no matter if we've never met, for we've both been boys—and we've both got boys. Catch on? Well, listen to what I'm going to say then—listen now.

The United States Steel Corporation has issued an order which reads: "Hereafter, all promotions of whatever character will be made only from the ranks of those who do not indulge in the use of intoxicating drinks." Read that over, son, and not once only—but several times; and ponder it deeply. And then cut it out, paste it on a card and carry it in your pocket; and whenever you think of indulging in a drink of intoxicating liquor, take it out and look it over; and when ever a crony urges you to drink, show it to him.

No, I don't want you to be a temperance crank—and peddle tracts; I just want you to play safe—and throw out a life line to your comrades, if he needs it. What does that order of the United States Steel Corporation mean, son. You know it means that Big Business will no longer tolerate the boozier; will no longer advance or promote the man who drinks—even in moderation. Why? You can answer that question, too, you are not a fool. The man who drinks is unreliable, inefficient, dangerous—to the extent that he indulges in intoxicants; he costs too much—and is worth too little. I know what you are going to say, I know. I've heard it many times before. You're going to say that some men drink more or less all their lives, yet live long and command a fair degree of success; and I'm going to admit the truth of your statement. But I'm going to insist on this: As a rule, sterling manhood and alcohol won't fraternize; won't keep company even; for every drinking man who achieves a meagre measure of worldly success, you can count scores who travel the road to abject failure, want, wretchedness and disgrace. There, son, I've said my little say, and I thank you for the attention you've accorded me. Take my talk for what it's worth; but remember this: The experiences of all the ages show that alcohol is a curse—and not a blessing; that it's an explosive in the mine, a monkey wrench in the machinery, an obstruction on the railroad, a weak span in the bridge, a gaping seam in the hull of the vessel, and an over-head charge in business; that it's excess baggage to the traveling salesman and actor, a poor gun to the soldier, a rocky reef to the sailor, a broken plow to the farmer, a lapped till to the merchant—and the enemy of all good and all human progress. There! Give me your hand! God bless you, son,—be a man.—Exchange.

WHY CONSTIPATION INJURES

The bowels are the natural sewerage system of the body. When they become obstructed by constipation a part of the poisonous matter which they should carry off is absorbed into the system, making you feel dull and stupid, and interfering with the digestion and assimilation of food. This condition is quickly relieved by Chamberlain's Tablets. Obtainable everywhere.

PARCEL POST CHARGES

Because of the cost of wrapping and the advancing price of paper, a number of wholesale firms are now charging their customers for wrapping up parcel post packages. The usual rate is 10 cents for all orders under $5, and 15 cents per package for orders over $5. Many stationery houses are also sending out an appeal to their customers to save all waste paper. The circulars claim that about 15,000 tons of paper are being manufactured in the United States every day and a large proportion of this could be used again if saved by the purchaser. A large proportion of this is either burned or wasted making it necessary to find new materials to make up for the loss. The importance of saving rags is also emphasized because of the shortage of materials for making writing papers.

SAFE MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN

"Is it safe?" is the first question to be considered when buying cough medicine for children. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has long been a favorite with mothers of young children as it contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. This remedy is most effective in relieving coughs, colds and croup. Obtainable everywhere.

BUILDING SUMMER HOME

Oscar Ameringer, social democratic lecturer and writer, has commenced the building of a $2000 summer home at Lake George. Through frequent visits to this city and vicinity Mr. Ameringer has gained such a favorable impression of the country that he feels it is the best place on earth in which to spend the summers. He is an enthusiastic sportsman and will devote much time to fishing and hunting.

Those who witnessed the recent production of "A Birth of a Nation" in this city recently will be interested in the following dispatch: Lafayette, Ind., April 24.—After witnessing the picture of "The Birth of a Nation" a former Kentuckian walked out on the main street of the city and fired three bullets into the body of Edward Manson, negro high school student of 15. The boy died.

LITTLE CHATS ABOUT POULTRY

Poultry Vices

Harmful vices acquired by poultry are not many but if these are left to develop in the flock the result will be a very discouraging situation and in some instances you may find it necessary to dispose of a large number of birds. It is a good thing to know these vices and to understand the reasons for them so that they may be recognized right at the start for then it is easy to correct them because there are only a few birds involved.

Perhaps one of the worst habits contracted by fowls is the habit of eating their own eggs. When this vice remains undiscovered or is not remedied at once it will very likely prove costly to the owner because of the number of eggs that are destroyed.

Usually this trouble starts when an egg is accidentally broken in the nest or when soft shelled eggs are laid on the roost. When eggs are laid about the yard or on the floor they attract the attention of the birds and they will naturally pick at them whereas they would not think of molesting an egg in the nest. When once an egg is broken it is eagerly devoured by all birds within sight of it and they quickly learn to associate an egg with an appetizing meal. From such a start the habit develops rapidly and before long you will find that the birds are eating the eggs about as fast as they are laid.

As soon as you suspect something is wrong, remove the birds that you think are involved so that they can be watched. Pay also particular attention to the arrangement and location of the nests. Do not have them located so that the birds can reach into them from the floor or from the droppings boards, for this only means that the eggs are more likely to be molested. Provide plenty of nests and do everything you can to prevent the eggs from being broken. Where nests are closed on the three sides turn the nest so that the open end is away from the light, this makes the nest dark and is one of the best means of preventing or of overcoming the egg eating habit. Use plenty of chalk or porcelain nest eggs and gather the fresh eggs as often as possible.

If you can secure egg shells, feed them liberally, in fact give your flock more than the birds can clean up and continue this feeding for at least a week. If you have doubt as to the feeding ration being well balanced change it and be sure that you are giving plenty of meal and green food. Remember too, that a generous litter on the floor, in which you can scatter the grain, will help to keep the birds busy and so keep them out of mischief. Keep careful check on the condition of your birds. Do not let them take on too much fat because this condition of the hens means soft and thin shelled eggs which are easily broken and this may start the egg eating habit. While feather eating is not a costly habit with poultry because the health of the birds is not affected to any great extent, this vice, which is the result of birds picking the feathers from one another, is a very unsightly one. The habit itself is more common among the smaller breeds and usually is the result of close confinement, poor feeding or a lack of good care. As a rule, where fowls are yarded little or no effort is made to induce exercise on the part of the birds and they stand huddled together for hours at a time. This congested condition greatly encourages them to pick at one another.

The male bird is usually the first victim, the feathers being gradually picked from the neck, although other parts may be attacked. In time the skin will be quite bare of plumage and this condition is not improved with the coming of the tender new feathers because these are greedily eaten for their meaty content.

The feather eating habit is one that spreads through the flock. The number of birds being picked increases and if nothing is done to check the trouble it will become quite general. Once established it is not advisable to attempt a cure with ordinary stock, a better plan being to dispose of the entire lot and to replace them with new birds. If taken right at the start however, when only a few birds are being picked the plan is to remove these and to keep them in individual cages until new feathers are entirely grown. If you do not wish to adopt this plan then you had better dispose of the few birds involved, using them for eating purposes. After this is done be sure to make the necessary changes to correct the faulty conditions that previously prevailed and that started the feather eating habit. Give the birds more room if they were too closely confined or if this is impossible reduce the size of the flock. Overcrowding poultry is unprofitable for a number of reasons other than the one we are now considering.

Be sure that you are giving a variety in the feeding. Do not overlook the necessity of giving animal and green food and of providing such materials as shell, grit and charcoal. It is advisable to give three meals a day although if a dry mash is kept within reach two feeds may do. Three light feeds of grain, however, is a better course to adopt. Apportion the amount given to the birds so that they keep active and always have a generous litter on the floor of the house to induce the exercise that is needed to keep them in good condition. Birds that must work for their living have not the time nor the inclination to get into the feather eating habit.

THE LAWRENCE ALLEYS

MOTOR MAID MARIAN

By HOPE AINSLEE.

The morning was fresh and fragrant with the odor of ripening fruit. General Malvery sighed as he realized that he could no longer take his daily drive through the glorious country roads. His only son had joined the army and gone to the front and without Bobby to drive the car to the station and return home with it the general found his motor useless. He wished he had been able to run the car himself. The Indian mutiny of long ago had robbed him of his right arm.

A few minutes later, he looked up with a smile. "The women are coming forward in this crisis with great spirit," he said. "Here is a young girl advertising for a position as chauffeur and gardener. Says she would like to take the place of a son who has gone to fight for his country." The general looked up wonderingly at his wife.

"That young lady would be a treasure. Is the salary too awfully large?" Mrs. Malvery questioned hopefully. "She asks no salary, bless her," replied the general. "She asks only housing and feeding."

"We will write today," Mrs. Malvery said promptly, her eyes shining. "So it was that General Malvery and his wife became the possessor of a 'motor maid,' as Marion Wells chose to designate her calling."

"My brother has gone to the front," she told her employers while she, too, tried to hide the tragedy in her brave smile. "He is all the family I have. Life was intolerable without occupation."

She was a slim, pale girl whose eyes shone with determination and hope. Otherwise Marian Wells had nothing to compel admiration. Her hands, too, were slim and white. The marvel was that they were so useful a pair of hands. She handled the garden tools no less skillfully than she managed the wheel of General Malvery's motor.

Marian had been shown the portrait of Bobby Malvery and, as all women did, she had freely expressed her admiration for the clean-cut, debonaire private in the Irish Guards.

"My brother, also, is in the Irish Guards," she said. "It would be strange if Dudley and your son should be fighting side by side."

There was no opportunity to write and ask, for it was not a day later that news reached the Malvery home from the front. The two men had fought side by side, or rather Bobby Malvery had fallen exhausted from wounds and it was Dudley Wells who had gone out under heavy fire to drag his comrade back to the trenches. Now both men were coming home wounded but cheerful.

"He saved my life for you who love me," Bobby had written to his parents. Marian laughed softly when this was read to her. There were tears running unrestrainedly down the cheeks of the two women and the general buried himself in the depths of the daily paper.

Soon everyone in the Malvery house was dashing about preparing rooms and putting fresh flowers in vases.

The general stood on the railway platform, blowing his nose vigorously and trying to look unaffected, when two stalwart men in khaki and bandages were swept into the embrace of Marian and Mrs. Malvery. No one said anything for a long moment. The general laid the arm the Indian mutiny had left him across the shoulders of his son. Bobby looked up and smiled into his father's eyes over his mother's head. Then the general offered his hand to that other hero who was Marian's brother. After that they all burst into speech at once. The tension was over.

Marian, in her neat brown uniform, led the way and stepped into the driver's seat of the car. She smiled softly at her brother as his eyes opened wide. He had not known that Marian was helping her country after this fashion. She told him the story as they spun along.

"There are not many girls like you," was all Dudley said. And that, naturally, was the exact opinion Bobby Malvery held from the moment of his arrival home. General and Mrs. Malvery soon exchanged glances that suggested their having discussed a probability. Bobby had done with startling swiftness and energy that which from the first they had thought possible. He had fallen hopelessly in love with Marian as the "motor maid."

"I wonder whether I shall give the bride away or be best man," Dudley laughed one day while he was strolling with General and Mrs. Malvery about the fading gardens. Bobby and Marian had gone off together for a short spin through the twilight English lanes.

"You are to be my second son, Dudley," Mrs. Malvery smiled and laid her hand affectionately on his unbandaged arm.

"We have managed to pick up a rather jolly family," the old general chuckled happily.

Out in the motor car Bobby looked blissfully into the shining eyes of the girl whose slim fingers were guiding the car so firmly. His uninjured arm had slipped closely about her waist.

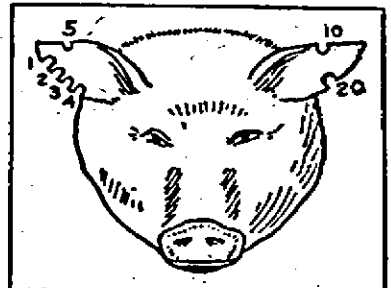

"We'll all be tremendously happy, my little 'motor maiden,'" he whispered, with his head against her shoulder.

And the car chugged contentedly on through the winding, fragrant lanes. (Copyright, 1914, by the McClure News-Paper Syndicate.)

SYSTEM FOR MARKING PIGS

Animals Will Not Bleed If Work Is Done When They Are Real Young—Cuts Are Made in Ears.

I will give you the system of marking pigs which I have used for several years. I find it much better to mark the pigs as soon as they are farrowed, writes Harry Selts of Washington county, Neb., in Independent Farmer. They will not bleed if it is done when they are real young. Cuts in the lower part of the right ear mean 1, 2, 3 and 4; one cut in the upper part of right ear means 5; one cut in the upper part of left ear means 10, and in the lower part of the left ear one cut means 20. Thus a pig with one cut on the lower and one on the upper side of the left ear is numbered 30; with four cuts on the lower and one on the upper side of right ear is numbered 9; and an animal with all seven cuts is numbered 39.

ARGUMENT FOR METAL POSTS

Coming Into Use on Many Farms Where Permanent Fences Are Being Made—They Will Not Burn.

There are several good and sound arguments for the use of metal posts, and they are coming into use on many farms where permanent fences are being made.

These posts can be driven, in most cases, not needing to be set. They do not rot, and will not burn. They also furnish a ground connection as a protection against lightning in case of wire fences.

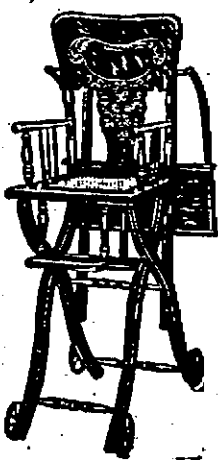

Wire fences can be grounded at small cost of time and money, but as a general thing they are not. The little work and expense needed will usually be postponed until animals are killed.

Fires which get beyond control, and those set to burn out weeds and rubbish along the fences will not damage either metal or concrete posts; and all these reasons are convincing many that such posts will prove more economical than wood where wood is hard to get and replace when through service.

KIRK'S TWO STORES

Since opening his double store in the Martin building on S. Pelham street last winter D. Kirk has been enjoying a profitable business which continues to grow as the months advance. South side people find it both convenient and economical to patronize Mr. Kirk, and in fact, residents of all parts of the city are numbered among his customers.

One part of Mr. Kirk's store is devoted to 5 and 10 cent articles, including kitchen ware, glassware, dishes, pictures, toys and novelties of all kinds. It is surprising the amount of goods a small sum will purchase in this department.

Groceries of various kinds and a small assortment of general goods comprise the other department. During warm weather ice cream will also be on sale, a modern sanitary container having already been installed for this purpose.

Mr. Kirk is assisted by two clerks. His store equipment is of the best and his stock throughout is new and up-to-date. By selling good goods at low prices he is putting a crimp in the high cost of living.

North Borneo Savages. In the interior of British North Borneo are natives who have never seen a white man and who live by the spear and blow pipe, just as did their ancestors of the tenth century. Elephants and rhinoceroses are so plentiful that they are a nuisance to owners of rubber and coconut estates by destroying young trees, and "the telegraph line" across the country is out of commission a third of the time because the elephants rub against the posts and pull them down.

Alpaca. Alpaca is the name of a species of llama from whose wool the genuine article is woven.

EXAMINE LITTLE INDIANS' TEETH

P. C. Damsel, government dentist, who has been working at Odanah during the past several months expects to complete his work in the village within the next two weeks says the Ashland Press. He will go to Hayward and will use the Training school there as the base of operations against the enemy of proper digestion, defective teeth. Dr. Damsel declares that he has taken care of upwards of two hundred children at Odanah but still he has not finished his work and will be obliged to return.

Uncle Sam does not make any charges for his dental services among the Indian children. The teeth of the Indian "kids" on the whole were found to be in fairly good condition. This condition of affairs is partly attributed to the fact that many of the Odanah people have come to Ashland to consult dentists when the molars of their offsprings show signs of decay.

Mr. Damsel will arrange his work so as to cover Hayward and Lac du Flambeau in rotation and after his six weeks labors at the Hayward agency he will leave for the Lac du Flambeau agency. His work at Odanah has been somewhat retarded because of an operation he underwent for appendicitis.

When Cricket Was a Crime.

Under a statute of Edward IV, England's great national pastime, cricket, was declared a crime, owing to the game having become so popular that it interfered with archery, the then sport of kings. The law was rigorously enforced, and every person convicted of playing the game was fined £10 and sent to prison besides. It was not until the formation of the famous Hambledon Cricket club in 1749 that the statute was repealed.—Dundee Advertiser.

Gold Heated Water.

Over 4,000 years ago an elaborate system of filtration was established by the Egyptians to purify the waters of the Nile. In both Rome and Athens hot water was drunk in preference to cold by the small minority who used water for drinking purposes. Champier, writing in 1500, notes that the habit of drinking hot water was spreading among all classes in France. "Some warm it by holding it over the fire. Others dip burning bread into it. Rich people plunge a bar of hot gold into their water before drinking it, and the less wealthy a bar of hot iron, while the very poor are content to warm their drink with a live coal."

Police All Ears.

A British ambassador once had occasion to tell a grand vizier of Turkey that he had incontrovertible proof that there sat at the grand vizier's table every evening a man who reported all that passed to the ambassador of another power the next morning. It is said that the police of Paris and London vie with each other year after year in their claim that no important crime ever goes undiscovered. It was once wittily said of the police of Beirut, under the old regime, that they surpassed those of London and Paris in the fact that they knew of every crime and robbery before it occurred.—Christian Herald.

A Queer Sentence.

A monkey exhibited at a museum exhibited at Tacubaya, Mexico, was sentenced to be shot under judgment. It seems that the animal bit a man, who died from the results of the bite. The family of the deceased brought complaint before a judge, who was foolish enough to institute criminal proceedings against the monkey and sentenced him to be shot. Finally the manager of the museum brought influence to bear and succeeded in obtaining a chance of the sentence to perpetual imprisonment. The monkey is now enduring the punishment of his crime behind the bars of an iron cage at the museum.

Something Wrong.

An Australian auctioneer who was reputed to have more education than professional ability was endeavoring to sell some cattle to an audience of farm hands. "Gentlemen," he began, "I have a particularly nice lot of heifers and bullocks, and I may say that the heifers predominate." He was interrupted by a very agricultural roke from the crowd. "I thought there was something wrong with 'em," it said, "or you wouldn't have to sell 'em."

KIDNAPPED GIRL FOUND AT CAVOUR

Lillian Repa, of Chicago, Tells Strange Tale to Forest County Officers

Albert Hess, deputy sheriff from Cavour, accompanied by Lillian Repa, Polish girl from Chicago, came to Crandon Wednesday morning, and the girl poured a strange tale into the ear of district attorney Dawson.

She says that last Saturday afternoon in Chicago, two men and a woman picked her up in an automobile and drove away to the north. They traveled all night and the next day stopped at a lonely shack in the woods. They gave her nothing to eat and she was unconscious most of the time. During the day she was able to escape and wandered onto the Soo tracks and into Armstrong Creek where she was picked up by Hess.

The district attorney, after hearing the story, dispatched sheriff White and under-sheriff Georgeson over to the Soo Line with the girl. After following up old logging roads all day without any result, they gave up the hunt. Either the girl is stringing the officers or else she says, she was drugged and her memory is hazy.

Sheriff White will turn the case over to the Marinette county officers, as the offense, if it occurred, happened in Marinette county.—Crandon Republican.

Chicago, April 23.—A rigid investigation of the story told to Forest county, Wis., officials by Lillian Repa, the 16-year-old girl who alleged that she was kidnapped Saturday night and held captive in Wisconsin for six days, was started by the police here today.

The mother of the girl admitted that she received two letters from the girl since her disappearance. The first note which was postmarked Chicago, stated that the girl had joined the St. Claire Sisterhood, and told her mother "not to worry." However, inquiry proved that no such order existed around Chicago.

In the second note, which was received yesterday, the girl asked her mother for carfare home from Armstrong, Wis., saying that she would explain "everything on her return." This letter bore a postmark from Englehardt, Wis. Instead of sending the girl money, relatives left for Wisconsin last night. Both letters were written in Polish.

Rhineland automobile owners who have not yet secured their 1916 license plates are liable to a fine of from $10 to $25. Many car owners were unable to get plates a short time ago as the secretary of state had not received his full supply from the manufacturer. Under such circumstances autos not bearing the 1916 numbers were allowed to go unlicensed by the authorities. The secretary of state now advises that he has a sufficient supply of plates on hand and there is no reason why the law should not be complied with.

LET THEM SKATE
The spirit of reform has surely taken hold of Rhinelander, the latest stunt in this line being an edict by the chief of police prohibiting roller skating on the sidewalks of that city. Any youngster who may be guilty of this grievous offense is liable to prosecution and punishment.—Stevens Point Gazette.

Why forbid the youngsters to roller skate on the sidewalks of the city, thus depriving them of an amusement which is both healthful and enjoyable? In many cities of the state children are not only allowed to roller skate on the walks but are encouraged to do so. Why is Rhinelander so strict against this practice? Can it be that the authorities here have forgotten the days of their childhood? Remove the barrier, let the little folks have their fun!

It has been remarked that most of the sentiment favorable to Mr. Hughes for the Republican nomination this year is due to the fact that no one knows his position on any of the important political issues and questions of the day. But is it not passing strange that this should operate to make a man a favorite candidate of any considerable number of voters?—Oshkosh Northwestern, Prog.

NOTORIOUS JEFFRIS

THE Mock Republican Convention (contrary to law) met at Madison yesterday and nominated the notorious M. G. Jeffris to run against Senator LaFollette at the September primaries for U. S. Senate. Mr. Jeffris has something the same reputation as the notorious Emmanuel L. Philipp, a tool of the vested interests. The August body nominating him consisted of only one hundred one men. Jeffris got sixty five of these as follows: Jeffris 65, Whitehead 24, Hudnall 11, McGovern 1, total 101.

Now the special interest organs and organlets will begin misrepresenting the facts by telling the people about this convention, when there is not a word of law to warrant such a gathering. Emmanuel L. Philipp did not take the nomination because he dare not attempt to make the run against Senator LaFollette. It was only those stalwart papers that were not posted as to the real conditions that suggested Philipp as a candidate against Senator LaFollette. Philipp was too cunning to try the game. Philipp and Jeffris will make a great Team, Two of a Kind.

Swans For the Table.
The swan as a dinner dish has been seen on English tables within comparatively recent times. "Up till a century or so ago," according to F. W. Hackwood, "swans were prepared for the table in and around Norwich. The young birds were put up to fatten in August, given as much barley as they would eat, and by November they were in prime condition. If kept longer they began to fall off, losing flesh and fat and the meat becoming darker in color. The corporation of Norwich still maintains its ancient swannery at St. Helen's swan pit and sells off a few of the fatted birds every Christmas at 2 guineas each."—London Chronicle.

Growing Bananas.
Bananas are, as a rule, planted out systematically in rows, the "suckers" being placed at an average of ten feet apart. The banana plant bears only one bunch at a time, but it is a quick grower, yielding its fruit in twelve to fourteen months. When the plant is about six months old a second "sucker" or shoot is allowed to spring from the root, a third after the ninth month, and so on, so that after the first year there is a continuous crop being reaped.—London Standard.

NOVEL INDOOR BROODER

Device Shown in Illustration Gives Entire Satisfaction.

Front Part is Covered With Glass, Allowing Chicks to Secure Plenty of Sunlight—Upper Portion is Detachable.

We have a brooder for indoor use that is giving entire satisfaction, writes Mrs. Belle Crandall of Hutchinson, Kan., in Farmers Mail and Breeze. The floor is made of a piece of sheet iron 3 feet square, in the center of which a round hole is cut 8 inches in diameter. A tin pan 4 or 5 inches deep and of the same size as the hole is fitted into this opening and soldered all around to keep out fumes from the lamp. This sheetiron floor is placed in a frame of 1 by 8-inch boards, 2 inches of which extend above the floor and 6 inches below. The brooder stands on four substantial legs.

A box of grooved lumber is made for the lamp, 20 inches square at the top, 10 inches at the bottom, and 15 inches deep. There is a door on one side 10 inches wide and 13 inches high. The lamp box is tight except for a 2 by 4 opening at the bottom of the door to admit air. In nailing on the board floor at the bottom of the sides an opening is left 20 inches square directly under the pan. Into this the lamp box is tightly fitted.

We made the upper portion of the brooder detachable. The frame for the top is made of 4-inch boards 3 feet long—two for the sides 10 inches wide, one for the back end 8 inches, and the front 4 inches wide. After nailing the frame together a 1 by 2-inch strip was nailed across at about the middle. The sides were then cut to slope to either end.

The back part is covered with a strip of canvas tacked to the middle crosspiece and allowed to hang down behind. This may be rolled up on a stick of wood, leaving an opening to suit the temperature in the brooder. The front part is covered with glass. The sheetiron floor is covered with old carpet and this with newspapers that are changed each morning. We are running three incubators, having one hatch come off each week. The chicks are kept in this brooder one week, when they are placed in an outdoor brooder, also homemade.

FEED FOR FATTENING SWINE

Mixture of Grains Adds Variety to Ration—Give Some Rye in Connection With Corn.

Rye as a feed for hogs ranks slightly below corn. The difference is so small, however, that for all practical purposes a bushel of rye may be considered as equal to a bushel of corn for fattening hogs.

Since a mixture of grains adds variety to the ration, it is often desirable to feed some rye in connection with corn. It should be ground or if this is not feasible it should be soaked.

Fertilizing the Orchard.

Barnyard manure is, in general, the best fertilizer for the orchard, says C. M. Burritt of the department of agriculture. This should be applied at the rate of a load to from three to five trees, at least once in three years. The use of commercial fertilizers is hardly advisable, except where careful experiment has demonstrated its value.

Concrete Silo Is Best.

The concrete silo keeps silage perfectly, is almost indestructible, and may be built very cheaply where sand and gravel are available.

MIDNIGHT MAGIC

By CATHARINE CANMER.

When the party assembled the day before at Allison's, there were nineteen guests, one of whom was Mrs. Stanley Smith, a sister of the hostess, and rumored lately to have become estranged from her husband. As they sat down to dinner Mrs. Allison remarked that everybody had arrived except Stanley, who would be there in time for the party next evening if possible. More than one besides Madge wondered whether she referred to Stanley Smith or Stanley Parker, but owing to the rumored break with Stanley Smith, nobody ventured to ask.

After dinner the next evening the big ballroom on the third floor, which had been mysteriously closed during the day, was opened and there was revealed all the paraphernalia for many kinds of old-fashioned games and fortune telling.

There was one man lacking to make the couples come out even, and just as Mrs. Smith was protesting that she much preferred to remain out so that she could take a flashlight of the dancers there was a general exclamation of surprise as a man in traveling clothes appeared in the doorway and looked a bit uncertainly toward his hostess. Mrs. Allison's surprise was so great that it was hard to tell whether it was pleasant or otherwise, but she quickly regained her composure and, with a side glance at her sister, who was busy arranging a Jack-o-lantern, she moved toward the door, exclaiming in an unnecessarily loud voice, "Why, Stanley Smith! You're better late than never."

Mrs. Smith turned at the name, and even in the dim light her face looked ashen pale. As her husband was being greeted on all sides she looked about as if seeking some means of escape before he reached her. Then he walked straight to her with a look of such penitent pleading in his tired eyes and with both hands extended, so expressive of his desire to take her again to his heart, that she almost fell into his arms. Those who stood near caught the sound of a sob in her voice as she said: "Much better late than never. I couldn't have spared you much longer."

At a few minutes before midnight all the guests were hurried off to be sheeted and masked for a midnight procession backward downstairs. The now radiantly happy Smiths managed this part of the program. One by one the ghostlike female figures silently passed with their lighted candles backward down the right-hand flight of the old colonial stairway, whose two divergent flights met on a broad landing and merged into a wider stairway leading to the hall below. One by one the ghostlike male figures passed down the left-hand flight. On the broad landing each pair of ghosts met and passed silently down the broad steps and disappeared in the semidarkness of the drawing room, from which, later, came many gay yells of recognition.

Madge was the last girl to go down. The strong-armed ghost who met her guided her quickly from the foot of the stairway out under the heavy hangings which concealed the back hall.

Up the narrow back stairway he silently urged her, then up the stairway leading to the now deserted ballroom on the third floor. The stillness of the dimly lighted ballroom was intensified by the occasional sounds of laughter from far below. Her strong companion grasped Madge's hands firmly but very tenderly, and as he bent over and looked into her eyes he spoke to her in a voice that sounded familiar and at the same time unlike any voice she had ever heard.

"Little ghost," said the voice, "I've traveled far and fast to find you, and because I've been kept away from you so long I'm selfish enough to steal you away from all the other ghosts. Do you care?"

"Do I care?" repeated Madge, who was strangely thrilled by the deep voice and strangely uncertain whether she had heard it before. The big ghost released her hands, and with one of his own strong hands pulled the pillow slip over her head, at the same time pulling a larger one from his own head, and Madge looked blushing up into the smiling face of Stanley Parker. He smoothed his rumpled black hair and she smoothed her wavy, auburn hair. His brown eyes laughed down into her hazel eyes. Then his two strong hands took both of her slender hands, and in a voice more soft, more deep, more altogether wonderful than she had ever heard, he said, "Madge, do you care for me?"

And this time Madge answered promptly, though almost inaudibly: "Yes, Stanley. Oh, how I care!" Long before he had finished telling her how he came by the last train and a dilapidated jitney in order to be with her at this party, or before she had finished telling him she had hoped that he would miraculously appear at the last minute, the sound of laughing voices on the stairway reached them. In a voice of friendly warning, Mrs. Smith called, "Oh, we're coming to rout the ghosts from the ballroom by singing 'Auld Lang Syne.'"

TOMATOES IN WINTER

Crop Is of Especial Importance in Many Eastern States.

Eternal Vigilance and Exercise of Good Judgment on Part of Grower
Are Essential—Product Meets Ready Demand.

Next to the potato, the tomato stands, perhaps, at the head of the list of garden vegetables in commercial importance. In Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, Indiana, and to a rapidly increasing extent in West Virginia, the crop is of special importance, while the greenhouses of New York and New England and the newly-developed truck fields of Florida endeavor to supply the demand for this fruit in winter.

By far the larger portion of the area devoted to this crop is employed in supplying fruit for the canning factories, and it is the demand of the canneries which more than any other has given the great impetus to tomato culture.

Successful tomato culture under glass depends as much upon the man in charge as upon conditions. Eternal vigilance and the exercise of good judgment on the part of the grower are more essential than strict adherence to set rules. The crop is one which demands constant care and intelligent management, but under suitable conditions the returns are very satisfactory, and the product meets a ready demand at good prices.

The most important conditions for forcing tomatoes are: A warm, light house—one having a two-thirds span facing the south being preferable—strong bottom heat, rich soil, careful training, uniform temperature, care in watering and pollinating, and, as before suggested, good judgment and constant watchfulness on the part of the grower. Bottom heat is not absolutely essential to success, but the crop matures more quickly if given this condition.

The plants are treated in every way as for outdoor culture till handled the last time. For fruiting some prefer benches, with about six inches of soil; but, in the writer's experience, the best results have been obtained from the use of boxes 18 inches square and 12 inches deep. In the bottom of the boxes is placed a layer of charcoal, broken pots, or "clinkers" from the furnace, after which soil, consisting of three parts good garden loam and one part well-rotted stable manure, is filled in to within two or three inches of the top. Each box will hold four plants, and the check caused by the partial confinement of the roots seems to be of value in hastening maturity. If the solid bed is used instead of the boxes, the plants are set about sixteen inches apart each way, thus occupying a little more than one and one-half square feet of floor space for each plant.

Best returns usually follow where the plants are trained to a single stem. Flax cords, about the size of wool twine, are fastened to the corners of the boxes or to wires placed parallel to each row, for that purpose, and attached above to wires running lengthwise of the building, on the rafters or sashbars.

As the fruit sets the clusters should be supported by means of a small cord or piece of raffia passing around the main stem above a leaf, thus forming a sling. At this time, too, it is well to stir the surface of the soil and work in a quantity of well-rotted manure or to give frequent applications of liquid manure.

Paint Improves.

Painting aids greatly in improving the appearance and prolonging the life of machines. It should be used freely when needed. Red lead and linseed oil make a tenacious paint and one of the best for all farm implements.

Protect Horses on Ice.

Now let those who have been careful to put chains on the wheels of their automobiles every time it rained see to it that their horses' feet are provided with something to keep them from skidding on the ice.

DE FOY-SEYMOUR

A quiet wedding was performed by Walter C. Heyl, pastor of the Congregational church, on Thursday evening April 20, at eight-thirty o'clock. Bertha Seymour and John DeFoy, both of Rhinelander were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed in the bride's home.

Tarnished Silver.

When silver is very much tarnished—and this often is the case when it has been put away for some time and not used—it is a good idea to clean it with oil and whiting. Take an old piece of cloth or rag, dip one corner of it in the oil—hard can be used if more convenient—then in the powder of whiting, and rub the black marks with it. They will gradually disappear with this treatment, and the silver must then be rubbed with clean dry whiting and polished with a soft leather.

The Truce of God.

The "truce of God" was introduced by the clergy of Guienne around about the year 1050. It was adopted in Spain about 1050, in England about 1050. According to this famous treaty, a cessation of all violent quarrels was enjoined under heavy penalties during all church festivals and from every Wednesday evening until the following Monday morning. This left only about eighty days in the year available for shooting and stabbing one's neighbors.

The truce seems to have accomplished much good, notwithstanding the fact that it was very imperfectly observed.—New York American.

Such Inconsistency!

"Why, they advocate universal peace, and yet they go right on marrying couples," replied the fat man.—Buffalo Courier.

DANFIELD ATTENDS SEALERS' MEETING

Legislation To Regulate Size Of Bread Loaves Discussed At Wausau

Legislation to regulate the size of a loaf of bread was advocated by F. P. Downing, state sealer of weights and measures, at the district meeting of city sealers in Wausau last week. Among those present at the meeting was H. J.
Danfield, sealer of weights and measures of this city. Mr. Dan-field found the meeting one of great interest and profit to all in attendance.
It is Mr. Downing's idea to fix the weight for bread by law, making the standard weights one-half pound, one pound and two pounds.
"Bread is the commonest article of food," said Mr. Downing.
"Yet two loaves of baker's bread looking exactly alike may vary several ounces in weight."
"With the weight of the loaf regulated by law there would be no chance to buy a short loaf.
Doubtless there will be opposition to legislative action on this proposition. Many people feel that the question of bakery products should be left to municipal ordinances."

The office of city sealer is one of the recently created ones, explained the officials who gathered for the Wausau meeting. Milwaukee was the only Wisconsin city which had a city inspector of weights before 1911. Now every municipality of any size has an official who protects the purchasers through his work.

The work of the sealer is twofold. He must see that weighing and measuring appliances are correct. He must see that they are used correctly.

"The fraud is usually in the use of the instrument, and not in a defect in construction," declared Mr. Downing. The state sealer is Mr. Downing. A former Wausau school teacher, who lived there in 1902. "Coal, wood and meats formerly offered the greatest opportunities for fraud. The butchers, because of the trimming which they have to do, have unlimited chances for deception, which, it must be said to their credit, comparatively few take advantage of."

Among the things discussed by the sealers was the question of selling eggs by weight. It is said that eggs average uniformly, although in the same dozen may be found eggs which have an ounce difference in weight. At the last meeting of the Wisconsin Retail Grocers' association a committee was appointed to draw up a bill, expressing the opinion of the grocers on the egg question.

"To secure proper protection against being defrauded each household should be provided with a good scale," said Mr. Downing.
"To be absolutely fair with the merchant, the scale should be of as good a type as the family can afford. An accurate scale can be purchased for about $3.50."

"Then consult the city sealer, who will tell you whether or not the household scale is accurate.
Food purchased by weight should be weighed on this household scale when it is delivered from the store. Families not having scales, who doubt whether they have received full weight, may take the package to the city sealer, Mr.
Pomeroy, who will weigh the articles on tested scales."

"Every purchaser should be able to read the scale in the shop. Computing scales are required by law to have weight indications on the customers' side. View with suspicion the merchant who weighs with lightning rapidity. If you "Do not buy in a careless manner. Order meats, fruits and groceries, either by weight, measure, or count. Avoid making purchases by money's worth, the basket pail, glass, package, or other indefinite manner. All of these terms mean nothing in the law. Do not allow your dealer to include the heavy wrapper or wooden trays in the weight of the commodity purchased. This is in violation of state laws.

"Do not, however, be too ready to condemn the tradesman. The majority of merchants are honest.
They may make mistakes. A mistake need not always be a dishonest one. The city sealer can very promptly judge whether the shortage has been the result of a mistake or dishonesty."
